HISTORIC CHURCHES

THE CONSERVATION AND REPAIR OF ECCLESIASTICAL BUILDINGS

Historic Churches is a prestigious annual BCD Special Report which for over 25 years has provided vital information to the many specialists who care for, maintain and adapt our precious ecclesiastical buildings and their surroundings.

HOW IT WORKS

Historic Churches combines essential information with superb presentation. Our readers find it highly engaging and refer to it regularly for technical information and supplier contacts.

Advertising in Historic Churches offers you a most direct and cost effective way of reaching all the people who are responsible for specifications and appointing professionals and contractors in ecclesiastical buildings work.

WHO USES IT?

Historic Churches goes out to 6,000 people and firms who buy or specify specialist products and services:

- 2,500 Conservation officers and advisory organisations
- 2,000 Specialist architects and surveyors
- 750 Ecclesiastical property managers, diocesan advisory committees, fabric committees and their equivalents in each denomination
- 500 Building contractors working with old and ecclesiastical buildings
- 250 Libraries and other information resource centres.

We also distribute copies on subscription and publish free flipping-page digital versions of Historic Churches on BuildingConservation.com to extend its reach even further, see www.buildingconservation.com/books/churches/.
